Country Overview

- Highly Developed Mixed Economy: South Korea boasts of a highly developed mixed economy, ranking as the 13th largest globally by nominal GDP and the 4th largest in Asia as of 2025, with a nominal GDP of approximately USD 1.790 trillion.
- Rapid Economic Development: The nation experienced a remarkable economic transformation known as the "Miracle on the Han River," evolving from an underdeveloped country to a high-income, developed nation in a few decades.
- Global Leader in Key Industries: South Korea is a global leader in sectors such as electronics, telecommunications, automobile production, chemicals, shipbuilding, and steel, with significant investments in research and development (around 4.93% of GDP).

Macro Fundamentals

- Resilient Against Shocks: Strong economic fundamentals and sound macroeconomic policies have enabled South Korea to navigate various economic shocks effectively, leading to a recovery in economic growth and a decline in inflation.
- Strong Export Performance: Exports remain a crucial driver of economic growth, with integrated circuits, machinery, and vehicles being key export goods. The country was the ninth-largest exporter worldwide in 2022.
- Healthy External Position: South Korea maintains a robust current account surplus, driven by strong global demand for its key exports, and holds significant foreign exchange reserves.

Risk & Catalysts

- Demographic Challenges: Rapid population aging and a declining labor force pose significant long-term economic and fiscal challenges, potentially impacting growth potential.
- Geopolitical Tensions: Recurring military crises and geopolitical tensions in the region, particularly involving North Korea, can negatively affect financial markets and the country's credit rating.

- Global Economic Uncertainty: Downside risks stemming from policy shifts in major trading partners, softening global demand (especially for semiconductors), and heightened global commodity price volatility could impact economic growth.
