

Stryker (SYK US)

As of 05 Jun 2025

- Stryker benefits from a leading position in orthopedics as well as strong franchises in medical surgery and neurotechnology. The company's sales and EBITDA growth trajectory bests most of its medical device peers.
- Stryker has exhibited discipline with capital allocation. Following larger bolt-on deals in 2022 (Vocera, $3.1 bn) and 2020 (Wright Medical, $5.4 bn) management prioritized debt reduction.
- We expect SYK to manage leverage in the low- to mid-2x range as it addresses its M&A needs/wants in the aftermath of the Inari purchase.

RISKS & CATALYSTS

- Stryker is exposed to medical procedure volumes. While volumes have been positive, owing in part to the resumption of procedures deferred during COVID, volatility could result from economic uncertainty in the year ahead.
- Stryker's M&A interest has leaned bolt-on in nature over the past several years, including the acquisitions of Inari in 2025 ($4.9 bn), Vocera in 2022 ($3.1 bn) and Wright Medical in late 2020 ($5.4 bn).
- Stryker has moderate overall exposure to hospital capital budgets versus medical device peers as it has recurring sales of consumables and parts.
- Last quarter SYK announced a definitive agreement to sell its US Spinal Implants business to Viscogliosi Brothers to create a newly formed company (to be named VB Spine, LLC).
